ANDREW STEMBRIDGE MANAGING DIRECTOR

ANDREW STEMBRIDGE – In October 2003 Andrew Stemberidge became Managing Director of Chewton Glen. Rejoining the hotel after two year's as General Manager of The Scotsman Hotel, in Edinburgh. Andrew was formerly the Operations Manager at Chewton Glen between 1997 and 2001 and has a great passion for the hotel and the unique way that Chewton Glen has been able to combine the benefits of a country-house hotel with the facilities you would expect to find in a much larger luxury resort property.

His highly motivated style of management empowers the team at Chewton Glen to provide the best possible service to guests visiting the hotel. With a BA Hons. Degree in Hotel Management and Tourism, awarded by the Scottish Hotel School at Strathclyde University, he has also participated in the General Manager's Programme at Cornell University, USA and has extensive management experience at properties both in the United Kingdom and USA, including fellow Relais & Chateaux property, Blantyre in Massachusetts, and the Malmaison hotels in Edinburgh and Glasgow.

Born in Scotland, Andrew is married to Alison and they have a young son called Harry.
